Work underway on new library in Minden

Construction is starting at the site of the new library cultural centre in Minden.

Construction of a floating concrete pad will be started in the near future with the completion date set for October 14.

At the regular meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden council, the township accepted the tender of Big C Construction of Haliburton in the amount of $26,100. The only other complete tender was received from Don Campbell Construction of Minden for $32,120.

Council accepted the tender under the condition that Big C Construction was a registered name or that a member of the firm would be responsible for dealing with the township.

Will run again, Minden reeve Nesbitt says

Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve Sinc Nesbitt is planning to run in the next municipal election scheduled for November 4.

"As it stands now I'll be going (for re-election)," Nesbitt said Tuesday.

Nesbitt said the municipality had just started to grow with the construction of the new curling rink and the library cultural centre buildings now underway.

"I think we're on our way," he said.

Nesbitt said he was also hopeful that the Business Improvement Area (BIA) for the downtown core of Minden village would be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) when the hearing was conducted.

He said the municipality had started out on a new direction in the past two years and it had worked.

"We finally got sort of out of the bush," he said.

Nesbitt, who is just finishing his first two year term in office for Anson, Hindon and Minden spent the previous 12 years as reeve in Stanhope township.

Nesbitt owns a farm along the Gull River, outside of Minden, on which he raises horses and is also part owner of a trucking and excavating business.

The crowning of Miss Hyland Crest for 1980 was the big event at the senior citizens' home fun day in Minden, last Wednesday. After the crowning, one of the contest judges, Alf Richardson, took time to kiss

Councillors remain hesitant on consolidated welfare idea

Haliburton County's social planning council still faces an uphill battle in its efforts to convince area politicians that welfare services should be consolidated on a county wide basis.

At a meeting last Thursday, politicians and officials from several municipalities met with the social planning council to air their views on consolidation, and while the politicians did not rule out any chance for consolidation, they did make it clear that they feel the present system is adequate.

More than a year ago, the social planning council asked county council to seek Ministry of Community and Social Services funding for a study to examine the benefits and costs of a consolidated welfare services system. The request was flatly denied. But there have now been indications that council's position is softening. At council's September meeting, Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve Sinc Nesbitt said he was no longer categorically against the proposal, as he had been a year ago. He called on council to keep an open mind on the matter and reconsider it if a study could show that advantages would more than outweigh costs.

Dysart et al reeve Murray

Fearrey also indicated that council should consider taking a second look at the consolidation proposal.

But at the meeting last Thursday, only Glamorgan councillor Joe Fecht, who is not a member of county council, came out solidly in favour of a county wide system for the delivery of welfare services.

Fecht told the meeting that "for the amount of money and for the effort expended on social services, I don't think Haliburton is getting its fair share."

Under the present system, welfare payments are administered by clerks or by-law enforcement officers in each municipality. While other social services are available to county residents, the services are administered outside the county, with no central coordinator.

Fecht said he did not believe municipal councils' contention that hiring a professional welfare services administrator would create problems because he or she would not have personal knowledge of the people in each municipality receiving welfare payments. He claimed that while clerks and by-law enforcement officers may be in close contact with

Role of reeve would change in fourth term

'Delicate issues' looming, Fearrey opts to run again

Dysart et al reeve Murray Fearrey has confirmed his intention to stand for re-election.

Earlier this fall, citing family and business commitments and mounting pressures on his time, Fearrey had indicated that he might not seek a fourth term as reeve.

But in an interview Monday, the reeve said that after much thought, he had decided not to drop out of the race.

He cited a number of reasons for his decision.

The municipality, he said, will face "some delicate issues" in the near future, that will call for tough decisions, including reassessment and the turnover of the Red Cross hospital to local control.

Council is expected to decide on whether or not the municipality should opt for equalized assessment under section 86 of The Assessment Act once the results of a study by the regional assessment office are known. The decision could be politically unpopular in the short term if it results in extensive tax shifts within property classes.

On the matter of the hospital, a system of administration will have to be agreed upon and functioning before the municipality can assume control of the facility. The reeve said Monday that it could take up to three years of consultations between the municipality, the District Health Council and local citizens to come up with a proposal that will provide the best possible health service in the most economical way.

The reeve also indicated that his decision to run again was made possible by a change in his approach to the job itself.

"I've had a chance to rethink the role of reeve in the municipality, and I feel that I probably haven't been delegating enough responsibility to the deputy reeve and members of council."

"If I'm fortunate enough to be re-elected, I intend to set up specific municipal responsibilities for each member of council and have all complaints funneled through that member and have them report to council."

If the system is implemented, Fearrey said, "the reeve, whoever he is, will have more time to concentrate on important issues and less on petty, day to day issues."

Fearrey said that if he is re-elected he will concentrate on "trying to get my time free so I can work on some of the other projects and not be subjected to all the petty calls."

The reeve admitted Monday that in not delegating authority and taking on a heavy workload, he may have been unfair to council, giving voters the impression that some members of council, who may in fact have much to contribute, have not done a great deal in their wards. That situation, he says, will change if he is re-elected.

Fearrey also admitted that he had been under some public pressure not to step out of municipal politics.

"It's safe to say that I had visitations and calls from a lot of citizens feeling that the community had prospered in the last few years and that they would like to see me stand for re-election," he said.

Although no one has yet indicated an intention to compete with the incumbent for the position of reeve, Fearrey said he would welcome a race, since he said he views it as an important part of the democratic process.

Among the other challenges which the reeve believes are facing the municipality in the near future are the completion of Head Lake Park, further development of Glebe Park, the issue of whether or not a full time recreation director should be hired, the inclusion of the Miskwabi area in an update of the municipality's official plan, and a proposal to include the Harburn Road as a major development road.

Among the matters which the reeve feels will require strong leadership at the county level are the securing of a DREE designation for the area and the negotiation of collective agreements with the county road workers and Hyland Crest staff this fall.

Got a yen to run? Here's what to do

Thinking of putting your name before the public in the next municipal election on November 4, 1980? Well, the process of nomination has been made even simpler this time around.

First, go to your municipal office and pick up a nomination paper and a voter's list. At the office the staff will explain that you must have 10 qualified voters, from that particular municipality, sign your nomination paper.

While collecting these 10 names be sure to mark down the addresses of the individuals and make sure they are qualified voters in your area. In Dysart et al, for instance, the ward system is in effect so only voters in the ward the candidate is

Producing eggs the automated way

With 6,800 chickens, the eggs are always fresh at Rosenbergs

by Sue Cooper

The huge yellow eye stares at all the passing cars, inviting them into the driveway. Above the eye, a brilliant red crop flops to one side of the chicken's head and the printing on top of the sign tells, the story: Rosenberg's Fresh Eggs.

And fresh they are. Inside the barns on the Rosenberg Egg Farm, which is located on Highway 121 just west of Haliburton Village, there are 6,800 chickens that look exactly like the one guarding the driveway.

Ken and Deanna Rosenberg now run the operation but 27 years ago Walter Rosenberg, Ken's father, started the business with just 100 chickens.

Three years ago, Walter, who is now 73, turned the farm over to Ken and Deanna. The day-to-day operations at the farm are run by Deanna with Ken keeping his job with the Ministry of Transportation and Communications to help offset some of the big expenses which have been incurred at the farm over the past three years.

Since taking over, the couple have fully automated the system so that food no longer has to be pushed around in a wheelbarrow or water carried in pails. They have also added an extension to the barn to allow all the chickens to be put in cages where the eggs roll to the front for easy pick up.

An egg grading machine which also candles, washes and dries the eggs, along with a refrigerator system has been installed.

Deanna, who was raised on a farm along the Gull River in Minden, remembers the hard work of feeding the chickens by hand.

"It was just four times as much work," she said. When they took over there were 4,000 chickens running loose in a two floor barn. These chickens were all fed by hand and although there were nests along the walls, collecting the eggs was not always easy.

With an addition on the new barn, the two storey

Hire rec. director, report says

by Sue Cooper

A report prepared for the Dysart et al recreation committee recommends that an experienced, full time recreation director be hired next spring.

The report, prepared by Gary Brohman, head of boys phys. ed. at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, was presented to the recreation committee at a meeting Monday night.

Brian Black, a member of the recreation committee, said Tuesday the committee "basically agreed" with the points contained in the report.

However, the committee still intends to meet with three more communities in the near future to discuss the success and problems of recreation programs in those areas, Black said.

To prepare his report, Brohman met with four recreation directors from different areas including Port Elgin, South Hampton, Ernes-town Township (Amherst) and London. He explained that the discussions touched upon policies, programs, facilities, budgets, salaries, philosophies, grant structures and hiring relating to the recreational director project.

As a result of these interviews, Brohman outlined 12 points the committee should consider as they continue to look into the possibility of hiring a recreation director.

To ensure the program is successful, Brohman said, it is vital to hire a director who has between five and eight years experience and the municipality should be willing to pay between $15,000 and $20,000 for a qualified individual.

According to Brohman's report, the director should be able to fill the community's recreational needs through adequate programming. "He should act as a 'central clearing house', so all organizations and administrators concerned with recreational happenings know what each other is doing as well as

Future of 'Coby' goes to OMB

The trustees of Coboconk have now made a formal notice of application to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) to dissolve their police village status.

Because of the lack of funds which are available to police villages, the trustees feel the townsites would benefit under the direct jurisdiction of the encompassing two townships, Somerville and Bexley.

Presently, under the police village program, money is raised for the village from part of the mill rates from both of these townships.

Trustee Howard Souter said Monday he felt there would be no problems if the police village was dissolved and the two townships took over the administration of the village. The township's boundaries run down the main street of the village.

The notice of application will be advertised so interested people will have a chance to object before Friday, October 24. Objections to the application must be made in writing and either sent by registered mail or hand delivered to Trustee Lyness Stry.

Trustee Souter said he felt there would probably be no objections to the application since the lack of money to run the police village was a proven fact.

"If there's not enough money, there's not enough push to keep it going," he explained.

He said he felt the village would be able to progress being aware of what the municipality is offering," the report states.

Brohman also stressed that the director should keep the public informed of the programs since communication is important in this type of project. He suggested using pamphlets, notices in the local newspapers, notices to service clubs, the chamber of commerce and the area schools.

Another suggestion was that organizations presently promoting community activities such as Sir Sandford Fleming College, Guild of Fine Arts and the service clubs should continue to be utilized to run a "variety of programs".

On the same note, a recreation director should try to arrange an exchange system to make facilities and equipment available to the public, Brohman noted. He suggested

Study to identify tourism potential

A study which will identify development opportunities in the Haliburton-Peterborough area will be underway soon. According to Aldo Campagnola, manager of the Central Ontario Travel Association (COTA), the study will be particularly significant because the entire Trent-Severn corridor will be covered.

When the study is completed in nine months to a year, it will "identify tourism development opportunities for potential investors and suggest guidelines for municipal and provincial governments", according to a recent COTA newsletter.

Campagnola said Monday that the Ministry of Industry and Tourism was responsible for hiring a consultant firm to investigate the opportunities.

When the study is completed it will outline the development possible in the next five to 10 years.

Campagnola said if the present study follows the pattern of the five previous studies, public meetings will be held to discuss the findings and the report will be available at many locations when completed.

under the direction of the two townships.

If no objections are made, the OMB will decide whether the police village status should be dissolved.

If some objections are raised, an OMB hearing will have to be held and only those registering an objection or requesting to be notified will be sent the date of the hearing.

ed a possibility might be to trade ice time at the community centre for space belonging to the Board of Education.

In the area of staffing, Brohman said the supervisor should be the supervisor while as much student and volunteer help as possible should be utilized.

Staff would play an important role in carrying out a recreation program in a geographically large municipality, like Dysart et al, since programs should be organized in the outlying areas as well as the village centre, Brohman noted.

Other responsibilities which might become part of the director's job would be the budgeting of all the recreation department's resources and management of the arena.

Brohman said the Ministry of Culture and Recreation has grants to help with projects of this type and he suggested the committee should contact the ministry's representatives to learn about programs in similar communities.

Another important aspect would be to organize regular meetings between the council and the recreation committee and also to make sure all procedures, policies, goals and job descriptions were in writing, the report noted.

Black said he felt Brohman's report was worthwhile and it had enlightened the committee in some areas.

On the hiring of a director, Brohman suggested a sub-committee consisting of one council member and two or three committee members could be organized.

"It would be wise to hire a director in early spring, or summer so that he could synchronize his programs with existing ones; and, book the use of facilities while there is time and space available," Brohman told the committee.

He suggested the committee read his report and also a report prepared for the municipality about four years ago by Lou O'Hara and then make a presentation to council.

"If the 'right' person is hired I am certain a quality program can be instituted to meet the many needs of our citizens young to old," Brohman noted in his conclusion.

The sky over Haliburton was filled with the glow of flames last Monday evening, but the blaze was a controlled one set by Dysart volunteer firemen to get rid of a shack that stood on municipal property adjacent to the community centre.

Cars damaged in county mishaps

A Haliburton area woman escaped injury Saturday when the car she was driving left County Road #7.

Edna Paul, 36, of R.R. 1, Haliburton was southbound when she lost control and entered the east ditch, striking a boulder.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2000.

A Toronto man also escaped injury in a single car accident on Highway 121 north of Minden last Tuesday.

Lorne Campbell, 82, was westbound when he applied the brakes and skidded into the north ditch, rolling over. Damage to his car was estimated at $2000.

A single vehicle accident on Trappers Trail Friday afternoon resulted in an estimated $1500 damage to a pickup truck.

John Gardner, 22, of Eagle Lake, was northbound when he entered the east ditch on a curve and rolled over.

Damage totalled $1050 last Wednesday when a school bus hit a parked car.

James Levely, 51 of Wilberforce was backing up a school bus on Northern Ways Bus Lines parking lot when it struck a parked car owned by Curry Motors Ltd. Damage to the car was estimated at $1000 and to the bus at $50.

planning to run in are eligible to sign his or her nomination papers.

When the 10 names are on the sheet in the proper manner, the prospective candidate must sign the paper, complete with his address. He must then submit the nomination paper to the municipal offices between October 16 and 20, during normal business hours, and if all is in order his name will be added to the candidates list.

A prospective candidate must be a qualified elector in the municipality in which he chooses to run. There are some exceptions which may be explained when you go to pick up your nomination papers.

Don't forget, nomination papers are available at all municipal offices now and you must officially file before October 20.

So hurry up and get those names. And by the way, good luck.

Consolidation: councils skeptical

welfare recipients, service is sometimes given inequitably. The Glamorgan councillor, who is a trained social worker, estimated that 20 percent of those who receive benefits are cheating the system, and said he did not think the number could be reduced no matter what system of administration was used.

Stanhope councillor Harry Davis agreed with most of Fecht's statements, but added that while the municipality "isn't going 100 percent on support services, we think we are doing a good job on welfare."

Davis said his council fears that if welfare services are consolidated, smaller municipalities will end up paying more than their share for the system because of the apportionment factors currently in use.

Sherborne, McClintock and Livingstone deputy reeve Donald Shortreed told the meeting that his municipality has been doing "an excellent job" of administering welfare payments, and that until it can be shown that the system can be bettered, "we will remain skeptical" about a consolidation scheme.

Shortreed said costs and the quality of service are his council's main concerns, and that they fear services may not be as good under a centralized delivery system.

The municipality's reeve, Fred Baum, agreed with Shortreed, noting: "I feel we have much better control. We know the people. I feel if it's taken away, costs would escalate". He stressed, however, that he would keep an open mind on the proposal.

Lutterworth deputy reeve Glynne Lewis indicated he agreed with the position outlined by Davis, Shortreed and Baum, and emphasized that having the by-law enforcement officer Stephen Fox double as welfare administrator in Lutterworth allowed Fox to keep "very close touch" with individuals receiving benefits.

Others who put forward similar positions on behalf of their municipalities were Snowdon clerk treasurer Geoff Wynne, Cardiff reeve and county warden Malcolm McGilivray, and Monmouth councillor Mary Barker.

The politicians' contentions were challenged, however, by Bert Costello, social services administrator for Victoria County.

Costello said his research indicated that welfare services actually cost more in Haliburton County under the present system than they do in Victoria County, which consolidated welfare services in 1967.

He urged county politicians to question their counterparts in Victoria County, and said he felt they would discover that Victoria County politicians are "100 percent in favour" of the consolidated system.

Costello noted that the elected representatives at the meeting have placed a lot of emphasis on "the cheating aspect".

"I don't see that as a big deal at all," Costello said. "I think you have to look at the benefits of the system."

People on welfare, he said, often need to be referred to other programs. He emphasized that there is a need for rehabilitation and retraining and that little is solved by simply handing out money.

Costello said on of the reasons that welfare costs are low in Victoria County is that recipients are often referred to other programs that take them off the welfare rolls.

Although no decisions were made at the meeting, it is expected that the social planning council will continue to keep the matter before municipal politicians.

Stanhope firefighters donate

Stanhope township residents raised more than $350 for the Terry Fox Marathon of Hope, last week.

Fund raising got underway on September 13 when the firefighters' association held a Terry Fox Night, raising $203.64 for cancer research. The following week, another $94 was collected throughout the community.

The additional $53, to bring the total to $350.64 came from the funds of the Stanhope Firefighters' Association.

Terry Fox, a young man who tried to run across the country on one leg, ended his Marathon of Hope earlier this month when cancer, which had taken his leg three years ago, was discovered in his lungs.

Fox was attempting to raise money for cancer research as he ran across the country.

Answers needed, study essential

When representatives of several county municipalities agreed to meet with the county-wide social planning council recently, they did so in the knowledge that in January, 1979, county council had refused to consider a request for a study that might have recommended the consolidation of welfare services. Council's decision had been an abrupt and perhaps ill considered one, but it had been made for reasons close to the hearts of most municipal politicians.

Put simply, councillors had feared that any change in the existing system would have resulted in increased costs. And they had refused to call for a study which would have told them if their stand was right or wrong.

Since then, county council's position appears to have softened a little, and a willingness to listen to another point of view has begun to surface. There was evidence of that change in attitude last Thursday when local politicians sat down with social planning council members and invited officials to discuss welfare services. For although little in the way of tangible progress was made, the very fact that councillors were prepared to argue their point of view and willing to listen to counter arguments from people concerned about social services or directly involved in providing them, indicates that the matter is no longer a closed one.

The arguments against consolidating welfare services centre on the belief, pervasive among the county's ten municipalities, that the present system in which welfare is administered from each municipal office, cuts down on the chances of cheating. Councillors are convinced that the clerk or by-law enforcement officer who doubles as welfare administrator has a better chance to know the people with whom he or she deals. When welfare administration remains rooted in the municipality, they argue, it is possible to know if the need is legitimate and how the money is being spent. And they may very well be right. But the weakness of the argument is that it is limited almost exclusively to the provision of money to people who cannot, or will not, work. It does not address the larger issue of how to get people off welfare and back into the workforce. It also ignores the fact that an individual or family may have underlying problems which can only be solved with professional help, as several people who attended the meeting were at pains to point out.

At the moment, municipal politicians are holding firm. They still believe that consolidated welfare service system would be both unwieldy and expensive. But those who attended the meeting appeared willing to admit that the position is based on gut feelings rather than facts.

Haliburton County is one of only five areas in Ontario which does not have a consolidated welfare service system. Victoria County has had one since 1967, and according to the system's administrator, Bert Costello, politicians in that county support it whole heartedly.

It seems likely that in the near future, the province will put pressure on the county to adopt such a system. With that in mind, Haliburton County council should be willing to at least allow a study of the matter to be carried out. If it can be proven that a consolidated system would indeed be costly and difficult to administer, and that the present system is providing an adequate level of service, the county would have good reason to resist the pressure.

On the other hand, if a consolidated system would better serve the needs of county residents, it should be implemented as soon as possible.

Only through a study will the truth be known.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

To the Editor:

None of your readers should be surprised to find that some of those who are interested enough in community affairs to be involved in the Chamber of Commerce may also offer their name for consideration in a municipal election. It is a real shame that some ulterior motives have been read into this and it may well discourage other good candidates from running in the county.

For the record I do not intend now, nor in the foreseeable future to run for any office myself since it apparently may tarnish the Chamber image. Barbara Bolin has indicated to me also that she does not plan on running. Tim Casey does intend to run municipally, but will not run for re-election on the Chamber board next week.

Hopefully with this cleared up the Chamber can get on with their project of encouraging voters to use their right wisely that has been misconstrued by this issue.

Yours truly,
Bob Stinson,
Manager, Chamber of Commerce

To the Editor:

Concerning your article in last weeks Echo I must say I was very disappointed in the comment passed by Reeve Fearrey regarding Mr. Bob Stinson, Mr. Tim Casey and Ms. Barb Bolin. Let's hope this was a misquote by your paper.

I would like to bring to the readers attention that Ms. Bolin and Mr. Casey happened to be absent from the meeting when this resolution was passed, and also Mr. Stinson does not have a vote, as he attends the meetings in a managerial capacity only. I have served on the Chamber board with these people for the past two years and can only say the comment was not justified.

As a Director of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce I take personal exception to the accusation that we as a board would support a project that was designed to be self-serving and assist Chamber candidates to become elected. All directors donate many hours of their time to the Chamber for the good of the community and don't deserve this kind of slur on their integrity.

Yours truly,
Miss Ann Lee,
Eagle Lake, Ontario

Editor's Note: The Echo quoted reeve Murray Fearrey's remarks accurately.

To the Editor:

I find most unfortunate the comments attributed to Dysart reeve Fearrey as quoted on the front page of the September 24 issue. (Chamber of Commerce has better things to do, etc.)

It now appears anyone running for public office, in the upcoming municipal election, who is or was a director of the Chamber of Commerce has been branded some sort of political opportunist on some big ego trip when in reality the exact opposite is true.

Service on a board of this type appears to me to be an excellent training ground for the new political aspirant as well as perhaps in a small way demonstrating to the community a sincere concern for what takes place in it.

Thanks to reeve Fearrey and the press unfortunately any Chamber director running for office has a black mark against them before the campaign even begins.

I guess that maneuver might come under the heading of small town back room politics. I thought our local reeve was above that type of thing. It appears I was wrong.

By the way Mr. Editor, your obvious severely critical attitude toward the Chamber and its function in the community has quite noticeably increased in intensity since last October when you yourself failed to gain a seat on the board of directors. A small case of "sour grapes" perhaps?

Sincerely,
Tim Casey

Editor's Note: The following is a copy of a letter sent to John Eakins, M.P.P.

I have spent part of my last two summers in the Haliburton area and am writing this letter to express concerns about the situation at Elephant Lake.

During the summer of 1979 my family and I rented a cottage at Silver Springs on Elephant Lake. We were impressed with the natural beauty of the area and the solitude of the lake. The only irritating factors were the noise and the speed of the logging trucks on Elephant Lake Road.

Upon our return in the summer of 1980 we were distressed to hear that the noise problem had increased and see that the speed of the logging traffic had become increasingly hazardous. The roadway had also been widened by cutting into the side of the hill on which Silver Springs sits. The whole road situation was a complete mess.

When I inquired about the situation from the owner of Silver Springs, Dennis Waymouth, I was informed that the road was being widened for the logging trucks of Martin Lumber. This road widening is ruining the beach facility and is showing a total disregard for the natural beauty and solitude of the area as well as a total disruption and destruction of the business of Silver Springs Cabins.

This type of occurrence, a large corporation getting its way by strong political lobbying is typical of the way that the government of Ontario operates. It is about time that someone within the government stood up for the rights of individuals, in this particular case the Waymouth family. Their tax dollars have gone to help set up an organization which is in the process of destroying their business.

I can assure you that if the present situation deteriorates by the summer of 1981, it will be the last time we will vacation in the Haliburton area. At Elephant Lake our main concern is for our child and the children of many friends who visit, when they try to cross the road to reach the beach.

It is truly despicable that elected members within the government of Ontario allow a

It's just about time that we started to face the facts and the facts are that any person who resides in Haliburton County and tells you that the economy here is in great shape, are just one step away from the need to see a psychiatrist. I wonder just how long we are going to go along fooling ourselves, and this is just what we have been doing. If the economy was booming here like it should be, we would have jobs for our young people who now have to leave home to seek employment in other centres, and we would not always have to be after the provincial or federal governments for assistance. We would have fewer businesses going into bankruptcy. Some people will tell you that it was really a busy summer here and possibly this is the truth, but how long is it going to take the majority of people to find out that we can't live here on six weeks or if we are lucky two months summer business. What we really need here is something that will employ more people who when they get paid, will spread their money around twelve months of the year and then we will all benefit. It's just outright ridiculous when you see certain people opening up business for two months of the summer, then close it and gently drift away. What good does this do anyone? If everyone did the same thing we would only operate our village and towns for the two months in the summer. It's the businessman who operates his place of business twelve months of the year, that makes his community tick. Many local businessmen who I have had the pleasure of talking with over the past week, tell me that they are starting to feel the pinch of this lazy economy that is with us here in this county, and that if something doesn't soon happen our outlook for the future will be very dim.

It is time that we all took a broader outlook on this matter and started to work toward a well balanced twelve month economy instead of two months. We would solve many of our financial problems. As I have stated in many of my columns in past issues of this paper, I just can't stand people who spread gloom and doom on any subject that comes up, and I still retain this thought. The time has arrived that we who live here for twelve months of the year must face the fact, that we can no longer go on living in this dream world of ours and started to face up to reality. Let's all of us make it a point now to try to help in anyway we can in coming up with a solution to this most urgent problem.

This coming Friday evening by about 11:00 p.m. we should know what kind of stuff that the 1980-81 version of the Haliburton Huskies are made of. This will be the first scheduled home game for the Huskies in this new season and the visiting team is Parry Sound. The Huskies are playing in a new league this year with eight teams made up mainly with teams from the Muskoka area. Once again this year according to the manager Don Lloyd and his coach Larry Hartin the Huskies should be a contender that will supply the home fans with plenty of thrilling hockey action this coming winter. We must keep in mind that the local team competition will be much tougher than it was in previous seasons. The Huskies will need your support. Let's not forget that the first home game is this Friday evening October 3rd at the arena in Haliburton when Parry Sound will be the visitors.

Members of the Rotary Clubs and their wives from both Haliburton and Minden were in North Bay last Thursday, Friday and Saturday attending the District Fall Conference.

The members of the Evangelical Fellowship of Canada will be celebrating the 10th anniversary of the Haliburton chapter this week and invite everyone to join them for a Banquet Meeting to be held at the Legion Hall in Haliburton this coming Saturday evening, October 4, at 6:30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Keith Price, vice president of the Evangelical Fellowship of Canada.

Here at the Echo we find it very hard and practically impossible to put articles in the newspaper each week that will satisfy each and everyone of our readers. In other words you can't win them all. If an excellent article is published no one seems to come forward and say how much they enjoyed it, but just have one little spelling mistake and a great many people will let you know about it. Don Lloyd the local arena manager who also looks after the entertainment board near the Post Office was telling me just the other day, that it pays to spell a word wrong. One day while passing this billboard I happened to notice that the word Parry Sound shown on the bulletin board in two different spots was spelled wrong when they used an E in Parry Sound instead of the A. I happened to mention this to Don and he told me that they knew that the spelling was wrong and that it had been brought to his attention on several occasions. As Don put it "Why change it now, when they know that everyone is reading it."

There is a program coming up on television that I am sure you won't want to miss. It's the Johnny Cash Youth Special on CHEX-TV, channel 12 on Thursday, October 9, 7:00 - 11:00 p.m. There will be plenty of the top entertainers from show business in this dynamic presentation "Where have all the Children Gone."

Archbishop Rt. Rev. Lewis Garnsworthy will be preaching at a special service this coming Sunday, October 5, at St. George's Anglican Church at Haliburton. Members of the two other churches in the Parish of Haliburton will be attending this service. There will be a reception following the service.

Mrs. Karen Dunsmore and son Jon from Toronto accompanied by Mrs. Joyce Dunsmore of Saskatoon, Sask. were weekend visitors of Elwin and Mary Robertson.

Report from Queen's Park

by MPP John Eakins

The recent announcement by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario that more women must be considered for employment, has prompted me to leave a few thoughts with you on the Women's Bureau of the Ministry of Labour. This provincial government agency, which is perhaps not too widely known, has existed since 1963. It was established to address the special problems encountered by women as their role in the paid labour force expands. The Bureau was given a specific mandate to provide information to the general public on labour-related issues affecting women, and to work towards the elimination of sex-role stereotyping in the workplace. Three major program areas are operated: Information and Communications, Community Outreach, and Affirmative Action.

The Information and Communications Unit is, of course, associated with the provision of information and the handling of labour-related problems. Its list of activities and responsibilities is extremely diverse and major tasks are the accumulation of data and research materials, as well as the provision of information. With the aid of specialists in labour legislation on the team, the Bureau's staff are able to respond to telephone calls from individuals and organizations on a wide range of legal issues or to refer them to appropriate agencies. Recently the most common topics have been pregnancy leave, sexual harassment and equal pay.

Unit staff are also involved in the preparation, for Ministry consideration, of studies and policy recommendations relating to the enactment and enforcement of labour legislation affecting women.

The Community Outreach Unit assumes special responsibility for maintaining active liaison with community-based organizations. A number of special client groups are served, including ethnic agencies, Native women's organizations, women's voluntary groups, employment counselling services, immigrant service centres, as well as low income women, women re-entering the labour force, and young women who are making vocational decisions while they are still in school.

The Affirmative Action Consulting Service provides information and advice to employers and unions concerning equal opportunity for women in the work place. The unit provides resources for management consultants, and labour, trade and professional associations - in other words, almost everyone concerned with women employees. It is the unit consultant's job to show employers how to make the best of all their human resources by adopting affirmative action programs and activities.

To the Editor:

I have a few comments I would like to make regarding Mr. Porter, chairman of the Royal Commission on Energy. What a waste of taxpayers money, 5 five million dollars and he does an about face? It does boggle the mind.

He jumps on our deep concerns as hysterical nonsense. According to him nuclear energy is clean. How can he hope to convince us of that, when thousands of tons of lethal waste are piling up everyday and no one as yet has come up with any safe place to store it. That does not seem to concern him, in view of his appallingly stupid comparison. If King Tut's tomb could have been stored for 4,000 years without being disrupted, then we can certainly store nuclear waste?

In the first place it has been my understanding that King Tutankhamen's tomb was not radioactive? Secondly his tomb, was in a vast desert in sand, not in some old leaky mine shaft or in shale rock as has been proposed for our nuclear waste, solid and liquid. I wonder if Mr. Porter was being amusing, or does he think we are all fools.

What I found amusing, was his claim to being a conservationist and an environmentalist. Really? Your home in Belfountain is a nice distance from your nearest nuclear power plant Mr. Porter, but nowhere is going to be far enough if there is a big accident. There have been plenty of small ones as you must know. Why wait for a big one?

For the sake of human and animal life, call for a moratorium on this callous and immoral race for power. These are alternatives, safe ones, to be explored.

Thank you,

From the Chamber

by Bob Stinson

What's this Chamber supposed to Do Anyway?

Good Question! With two newspapers taking an entirely opposite viewpoint on the responsibility of the Chamber in connection with the forthcoming Municipal Elections it may be timely to consider the question further.

Five years ago it was found, when talking to members of the business community, that there was a real concern that the Chamber was little more than a tourist association and did not represent a full cross section of the businesses in the area. The criticism may, or may not have been well founded, but as a result the Chamber has since been conscientiously aware of other areas that it should be considering involvement in, so that it would fulfil its entire mandate. Directors, other than those directly involved in Tourist operations have been encouraged to serve on the board in order to broaden the Chamber's scope. We have, in the meantime, tried not to sacrifice any of our energies towards Tourist promotion to accomplish this. Now, the newspaper that was among those that criticized us four and five years ago agrees with the members of council that say we should limit ourselves to promoting Tourism.

Our members often look to the Chamber for help when they feel some level of government is treating them unfairly. We have, where it was apparently justified, attempted to rectify some situations on their behalf. We have also been asked both by our members and municipal bodies to present briefs on such concerns as D.R.E.E., the Railroad Hearing, Algonquin Park Planning, The Provincial Trails Council, Retention of the Registry Office, and even Market Value Assessment. We fought in vain, in the name of retaining our identity, to keep the "now entering Haliburton" signs in place. Raising our voice on these issues has now brought the comment that we should "stop criticizing government". Government on the other hand say they welcome the type of input provided by the Chamber. How else are they to judge some of their own decisions?

The public sees the Chamber as a body to go to with their complaints and concerns, -- all the way from watching loons being harassed on a lake by boaters, to the fact that they were hoodwinked by some fly by night salesman. Although many of these problems are beyond our area of influence we do what we can to assist in any way we can. When we receive complaints involving our own members we attempt to mediate the matter to a satisfactory conclusion.

The public also sees the Chamber as a source of information, while often we are the last ones to be informed, unless we take the initiative to find out. Inquiries range from information on coming events to trying to locate a long lost cousin whom they think resides in the area. This often requires considerable detective work on behalf of the staff, to provide the answers when we don't have the information on file.

Many organizations both within and outside the county look to the Chamber to complement their role in providing services. This can vary from the very active role of sponsoring the Canada Manpower Outreach Office here to a minor one of sponsoring the Federal Business Development Bank's seminar. Minor, that is, in that they do all the work. We are, of course, asked by many organizations to assist in promoting their upcoming events, and as well to sit in on organizational meetings involving such things as water levels committees, career planning, social planning, tournaments, and the forming of new clubs and associations.

The Tourist operators want the Chamber to promote the area, assist them with their own promotion, and operate the information centre that

Bill Smiley

One of my father's favourite jokes, before the word "corny" had been invented, was, "It's a long time to be married to a strange woman." He repeated it once a year, on his wedding anniversary, and I can still remember my mother's eyes rolling up, the way women's eyes roll up when their husband's are telling a story they've heard eleven times before.

But it pops into my head everytime I think of my own wedding anniversary, which is usually about two weeks after the event.

This year, I remembered about two weeks before the event, but by the time this appears in print, I'll probably have forgotten completely.

My wife is no better. She can be so sentimental it's downright disgusting, over such trivia as her children, her grandchildren, her father, her house, a particular party twenty years ago, a friend who is in trouble, and, very occasionally, about me.

But when it comes to really important things, she cares not a whit. The first indication of this was when I gave her a flower on Mother's Day many years ago. She said, curiously, "I'm not your mother."

Birthdays, same deal. She was born on February 28, surely easy enough to remember, with its connotations of Leap Year. I forget. She does too, though I'm not sure hers isn't psychological a year older.

This attitude permeated our family. Our kids certainly knew what Christmas was, little greedy guts. And Easter: church with joyous music, hunt for Easter eggs, probably a visit with grandparents.

But I'm quite sure they don't know what the first of July is a holiday, have only the vaguest idea what Remembrance Day and Thanksgiving are all about, and exactly which day is their birthday, though they know the month they were born in, because that ties in with astrology, in which they fairly firmly believe.

But my Dad was right, even though repetitious. "It's a long time to be married to a strange woman." Especially one you didn't even know before you met her, if you follow me.

I met this strange woman at university, when I came home from the wars. I thought she was demure, beautiful, and shy. And she was. She thought I was brash, swaggering and far too unheeding of the university's rules, which I was.

And many years of togetherness, we've each retained only one of these adjectives. She is still lacking in demure, she is totally beautiful, and she is about as shy as Muhammad Ali.

I have completely lost my brash, have nothing to swagger about, but am still far too unheeding of the rules of the establishment.

An odd combination, you'll say, to get married. And it was. She thought me boorish and uncouth, especially after I fell sound asleep in the middle of a lecture by the late, great poet, E.J. Pratt. She didn't realize that I had been at a lunch-time reunion with some old Air Force pals who'd just arrived back from overseas, and that it was only great gallantry and iron will that had forced me to make the lecture.

I thought she was prissy, prudish and dumb, because she never missed a lecture, wouldn't even throw one inviting look at the dashing young ex-fighter pilot in her class, and ventured no opinions on anything.

Oh, well. Chemistry, I guess. I won't go into the details, but a few months later we were exchanging furtive kisses in the library stacks, groping embraces in doorways, and skipping lectures right and left.

And a year later, we were married, with no pomp and little circumstance, poor as church mice, but head over heels. It was better to marry than to burn, as Paul told the Ephesians or somebody. And about ten months later, we had a little stranger in our midst, and were poorer than church mice. But still head over heels.

That little stranger is now thirty-three. Now, I'm not going to tell you which anniversary this is. I don't want a flood of milk coats and gold bars and ten-cent cards coming in.

Suffice to say that we won't celebrate it together, but we'll be together. There's nothing quite so disgusting as the married couple who can't stand each other's guts, but go out for a big dinner party, on their anniversary.

Like most couples, we've grieved and wept together, laughed together, helped each other over some rocky roads, loved together, fought with mutual fury, taken great joy and great heart-aches from our children, idolized and spoiled our grandchildren, and managed to muddle along, day to day, in this peculiar life that throws up road-blocks and rainbows, groans and guffaws, tears and terrors, death and taxes.

We still constantly worry about the welfare, state of mind and health, and golf score of the other.

We still fight frequently, although I have called and asked that my wife be taken off the list of "Husband-beaters." She hasn't thrown anything bigger than a glass of water at me in months.

My dad was right. "It's a long time to be married to a strange woman." And may yours be as long, and as strange. Not your wife; your marriage.

Trent Severn lowers levels for winter

Reservoir storage declined to 59% on September 22, about 9% higher than the 10 year average. The lakes are now close enough to normal fall levels that flows from the reservoirs can be reduced and still have the lakes at their winter holding levels by October 31, before the lake Trout spawn.

The Kawartha Lakes started the week below the maximum of their navigation ranges, but most overfilled this week with the heavy precipitation, and flows have been increased to bring them down to mid-ranges again.

Lake Simcoe-Couchiching flows have been reduced, as the lake is now at a level of 218.86 meters, only 4 cm above the rule curve elevation for this date.

COUNTY ECHO SPORTS

The HHSS Redmen scored two touchdowns in their first home game against Brock Friday afternoon, but both of them were nullified by penalties. The mistakes had no effect on the outcome however, as the Redmen dominated their opponents and won the game on a safety.

Redmen take two straight to keep season playoff in sight

Bolstered by an effective defense and an offence that is beginning to click, Haliburton high school's Redmen came back from a loss in the season opener to take two straight games last week.

Defeated by Fenelon Falls in their first outing, the Redmen travelled to I.E. Weldon secondary school last Tuesday. The game was worth four points, since the teams will meet only once this season, and Haliburton had to win it if they wanted to keep their playoff hopes alive. And in the end, they did just that, despite a controversial final play that had coaches and officials scrambling for their rule books.

In the opening quarter, neither team gained much ground, and the scoreboard remained blank until the second, when I.E. Weldon punted into the endzone on third down and Haliburton was forced to concede a single point.

The Redmen offence, gaining experience and confidence as the season progresses, clicked for their first major of the year in the third quarter, as Ron Yake found split end Mike Rae on a 40 yard pass and run play.

The Redmen opted to try for the two point conversion but were unable to connect on the play, making the score 6-1 in favour of the Haliburton squad.

Late in the third quarter Haliburton was called for pass interference on their own three yard line, a mistake that could have proved costly. But the defence rose to the occasion and held Weldon out of the endzone on three successive plays.

The Redmen offence was stymied on the next series and quarterback Ron Yake was forced to concede a safety making the score 6-3.

The fourth quarter was a close contest, with both teams fighting for the score that would put the game on ice.

With a little over three minutes left in the game, Weldon attempted a field goal from the Redmen's 25 yard line. The boot was good and the score was tied 6-6.

A couple of series later with the Redmen facing second down on their own 30 yard line, a quick kick was called. The ball took a bounce in the Redmen's favour, and Weldon was nabbed on their own 20 yard line. But a clipping call put them back to the 10.

With the less than a minute to go, Weldon attempted a pass on first and 10 but threw incomplete. On second and 10 they drove for eight yards on the ground. Just 30 seconds remained when Weldon called for a time out to confer with their coaches on final strategy. Hoping to at least save the tie, Weldon attempted to run the clock out on third down, but the Redmen defense stormed through and brought the quarterback down.

Barely 15 seconds remained as the Redmen took over possession. Angling for a game winning safety, Haliburton punted deep into Weldon's endzone. Before the receiver could be tackled, however, he booted the ball back out. A Weldon player who had been in the endzone but in front of the kicker recovered the ball and ran for the touchdown, but it was called back.

sive squad for their goal line stand in the third quarter that kept out what looked like a sure touchdown. Defensive captain Rich Choy played a particularly strong game.

On Friday, amid rain, wind and cold temperatures, the Redmen squared off against Brock for their first home game of the season. Whether it was a case of nerves caused by playing in front of their schoolmates or the cold that Redmen attempt for a single point was stopped when the punt hit the upright, giving Brock possession on their own 10 yard line. The visiting team could not move the ball however, and their attempt at a third down punt was blocked, with the Redmen's Casey Cox coming up with possession.

The Redmen then marched the ball to Brock's three yard line, but fumbled and Brock

Last minute ruling gives Redmen the win

At that point, the officials appeared ready to call for an overtime period, but following lengthy discussion, they ruled the Weldon player who recovered the ball was offside and that the ball should go back to the point of infraction. That gave Haliburton the single point they needed for the win.

Final score was Redmen 7, I.E. Weldon 6.

Outstanding players in the game included Ron Yake on offence and the entire defen-made fingers and hands stiff, the Redmen had trouble handling the ball, resulting in a number of costly turnovers. Despite the mistakes, however, the Redmen dominated play throughout much of the game.

In the first quarter, both teams stuck to the ground and played cautiously, and neither was able to threaten.

In the second, the Redmen began to show their strength, holding Brock's offence for little gain on each series. A recovered. At the half, the score was still 0-0.

In the third quarter, the Redmen again outplayed Brock by a wide margin, but were plagued by bad luck, as a 35 yard field goal attempt hit the crossbar and a second field goal try was blocked.

In the fourth, Haliburton again went after the field goal, but Ron Yake's 20 yard try was wide, giving the Redmen a single point on the County lakes produce Big Fish entries

Haliburton area lakes have provided anglers with a number of entries in the Molson Big Fish contest.

The contest offers a total of $4,500 in prize money and runs for two more months.

In the brook trout category, Crown Lake in Livingstone Township provided a 5 lb. 12 oz. beauty for H. Pyle of Port Sydney, Ontario. The biggest entry in the category so far weighed 7 lb. 15 oz. and was caught in the Nipigon River. Four Corners Lake in Brant Township also provided a fish worthy of entry P. Conley of Oak Ridges, Ontario. His brook trout tipped the scales at 4 lb. 8 oz.

No lake trout exceeding the qualifying weight of 15 lbs. have been landed in the area this year, and the same is true of maskinonge, and rainbow trout.

In the largemouth bass category, however, Balsam Lake in Somerville Township proved a good spot for M. Kaye of Oakville. His 7 lb. 0 oz. entry is good enough for fourth place in the category so far, behind the leading 8 lb. 2 oz. fish. Somerville Township also provided the eighth place entry for R. Wickett of Agincourt who hauled in a 6 lb. 6 1/2 oz. specimen from Shadow Lake.

In the small mouth bass category, T. Brandon, of Sharon, Ontario had good luck in Bass Lake, Galway Township. His sixth place entry tipped the scales at 5 lb. 8 oz. Leading fish in the category weighed 7 lb. 9 oz.

Entries this year have been generally smaller than last year, and according to contest organizers, there is still plenty of opportunity to come up with a fish that will finish

Huskies meet Parry Sound in Junior C action Friday

Haliburton residents will have their first chance to see Junior C hockey in action at the Dsart Community Centre this Friday night at 8:30 p.m.

The Haliburton Huskies changed to the Junior C category this season after the Junior D loop in this area died. The Huskies had a choice of either moving up to Jr. C or not entering a team in competition this season.

In their first homegame of the year, the Huskies will be meeting Parry Sound.

Manager Don Lloyd feels the team should be able to compete well in the Junior C division.

On Monday he announced there will be a dance in the arena following the hockey match, to celebrate the Huskies first game.

Crawford wins Canadian-United States championship

Rocky Crawford, and a buddy, Jim Collins won the Canadian United States Bass Championship at Lake Scugog on September 20 and 21. Crawford, born in the Minden area and now living in Oshawa, cottages near Horseshoe Lake.

Along with winning the top honours with his team mate, Crawford also took first prize for the largest fish caught during the tournament.

The pair won, including

Crawford's prizes for the big fish, $700 in cash, a 24 volt electric troll motor, a 7.5 horsepower Evinrude motor, $1,500 voucher towards the purchase of bass boat, and ultralight rod and reel, four tackle boxes, a spinning reel, trophies and other prizes including clothing and entertainment vouchers.

Although this is the first competition Crawford has done extremely well in, he is planning to enter more tournaments next season.

More men needed for hockey league

More than 40 players have signed up so far for the planned men's recreational hockey league in Haliburton. League organizer Darrell Stamp said Monday that he was pleased with the response so far, but that more players are needed.

Registration will continue all this week, and will be followed by a draft to form teams.

Anyone interested in playing the league, which will use "gentleman" rules, should sign up at the arena or the Dysart municipal office, or call Darrell Stamp after 6 p.m. at 754-2099.

endzone tackle. Minutes later, with a second and a goal to go on Brock's eight, the Redmen drove in for the score, but an illegal motion called nullified the major.

With very little time left on the clock, Brock's attempt at a pass was intercepted on their 35 by Mike Hatkoski.

Junior team still showing in Kawartha West

Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's soccer team continues to hold their own in games against Kawartha west teams.

Last Wednesday the team travelled to Fenelon Falls, where they held their opponents scoreless, thanks to some excellent goal tending by Tim Derma.

The game ended in a 0-0 tie.

OPP suggest hunters carry safety kit

- from the OPP -

Each year during hunting season, the Ontario Provincial Police must commit a large proportion of its manpower and resources to searches for lost hunters.

Starting October 16, an OPP helicopter will be operating out of the Chapleau area during the busiest part of the season. It will be available for patrol and search assignments.

Trappers and bush workers soon learn to respect their environment. The bush can be a hostile place unless you are fit, healthy and know survival techniques.

Provincial police recommend that every hunter carry a survival kit, compass and topographical map of the area where they are hunting.

No hunter should go into the bush unless someone knows where he will be hunting and when to expect him back.

A survival kit is a necessity for the hunter. A small package with waterproof matches, aluminum foil, fishing hook and line, and some high-energy foods takes up very little room and could make the difference between life and death.

Bowling

Twelve bowlers did better than a 200 score in the Wednesday afternoon bowling league, last week.

Top scorer was Linda Morrison with 320 and 217; Harry Henderson 256, 216, Frieda Handy 247, Flo Henderson 233; Bill Barber 233; Ev Stata 221, 205; Pearl Foster 208; Edith Burch 207; Lillian Goveatt 204; Harold Kirkpatrick 204; Shirley Hamilton 201 and Gordon Bennett 201.

Survival kits like this are available commercially and come wrapped in plastic so they are completely waterproof.

First aid supplies are a must. They should include large dressings for treating serious lacerations and broken bones as well as bandages for minor cuts.

The old trick of blazing a trail is still good. A heavy knife will do the job. A knife will also be essential if a hunter does lose his bearings and has to spend a night in the bush.

Add a hank of good nylon cord and the kit is complete.

Stanhope Notes

by Alex Stevenson

Stanhope Fire Department again demonstrated its value this week, when a fire occurred in the attic of the home of Mr. John Dones on Highway #35. The fire, caused by a faulty electric wire, was not noticed by Mr. Dones until he had reason to go outside, at which time he noticed the smell of smoke and on investigating saw smoke coming from the attic ventilator.

The fire department was called and brought the fire under control, preventing what could have been a destructive blaze.

Mr. Dones expressed great satisfaction with the performance of the members of the department, saying that their quick response and their competence in bringing the fire under control left no room for complaint. He thought it was a praiseworthy effort which greatly minimized the damage which could have resulted.

Mr. Dones also pointed out that in addition to the quick response, he was surprised and pleased by the number of volunteers who responded to his call in mid afternoon. It has to be said again that the township of Stanhope is very fortunate to have a capable and dedicated group of volunteers such as those who make the fire department what it is, one that is strong in community spirit and ready to come forward in an emergency. We have been informed that the fire department raised some $300 for the Terry Fox Cancer Research Fund as a result of a party held for that purpose last week -- another good effort by the men and their ladies.

Dale MacDonald, well known garage operator on Highway #35 at Hall's Lake, has announced that he intends to stand for election as Councilman for Stanhope Township. Dale has served on the fire department for several years and, after resigning from the department, returned to serve again at a time when the Township was facing a fire protection emergency and called on former members to help meet the emergency. Those who regularly attend Township Council meetings are aware of Dale's interest in community affairs, which is shown by his frequent attendance at the meetings and by his quite informative file of notes which he makes at the meetings he is present at.

Another potential candidate for Township Council is Mrs. Ann Barker who has been approached on several occasions to consider standing for election. When we spoke to her, Ann stated that she was giving it very serious thought and would be willing to run if she was convinced that she could serve the Township of Stanhope in a meaningful way. Her interest in the Township of Stanhope in a meaningful way. Her interest in the township is well known and few things happen that do not have her active support.

Among these are the annual Stanhope Days, her concern for Senior Citizens, her presence on the Community Hall Committee, but above all is her dedication to the Stanhope Fire Department. Any member of the fire department would tell you that the support of the ladies has been essential to the progress of the department, and Ann has joined with the other ladies in supporting their men in every effort. Ann has also played an important, though little known part in fire emergencies in the township through maintaining radio and telephone contact with the fire fighters when they are out on a call. This often means getting more precise information re location of a fire when directions have not been properly given by the person calling for assistance. Formerly in business for herself, Ann is well known to many seasonal as well as permanent residents as is her husband Don who operates a heating contracting business in Stanhope.

Rosenbergs have the freshest eggs in town

barn has been retired from service. But Deanna says there's enough lumber in it to build a good garage for their vehicles.

The new barn has a capacity for 8,800 chickens but because of the quota system enforced by the province's egg marketing board, the Rosenbergs are only allowed to have no more than 6,800 birds.

Sitting in her kitchen last Friday morning, Deanna kept glancing out of the large bay window which faces towards the barn where customers drive up for eggs. The newest addition to their operation will allow her a little more freedom during the day to accomplish some other work.

Last week, the Rosenbergs built a small building just beside the driveway, where their individual customers will be able to pick up eggs on a self serve basis.

"I don't know how many times I've run out to the barn to wait on a customer and then waited around for someone else to come. And then I'd just get back to the steps and another customer would come," Deanna laughs.

Other than private customers, the Rosenbergs also sell their eggs to local grocery stores, restaurants and lodges. The summertime is the best season for the egg business with only about 450 to 600 dozen eggs being shipped to a commercial grading station in Barrie each week.

Only the excess eggs are shipped out while all the other eggs, to total 3,500 dozen a week, are sold locally. In the winter the excess eggs rise to about 1,950 dozen which are shipped out of the area.

At Rosenberg's farm only fresh eggs are sold to their customers with yesterday's eggs being packed in cold storage for the commercial grader to pick up at the end of the week.

"They're today's eggs," Deanna said about the eggs she was selling to her customers.

The main aim behind the egg farm is to provide the freshest eggs possible to the public.

Deanna said her commercial customers receive fresh eggs on a weekly basis, but the companies which supply other outlets might be selling eggs that are at least six months old.

Last year when there was an egg shortage, Deanna said some stores were receiving eggs from Florida that were likely a year old.

"I wouldn't have eaten one of those, if it had been the last egg in this world," she said.

Every day the eggs are collected by hand. It takes four people about one and a half to two hours to pack close to 6,000 eggs.

The eggs to be sold at local retail outlets are graded on a machine which the Rosenbergs purchased from the Campbell Soup Company which raises its own poultry. The machine lines one small section of wall in the barn with one end encircled by a black curtain.

When it is time to grade the eggs, the machine is turned on and one person must go inside the curtained area and place the eggs on the chain conveyor belt. The eggs pass over a lighted section and the operator watches for blood spots or cracks. The eggs are then washed by soft brushes, dried and graded. Deanna said the eggs are graded by their weight when they pass through the machine.

However, Deanna said, eggs that people might want to hatch should never be washed since they are covered with a protective oil coating.

But none of the eggs are ever hatched at Rosenberg's. They buy their chickens from a man who produces more than a million chickens a year. When the chickens arrive, they are 20 weeks old and they will be sold after a year of egg laying, usually in April.

When the time comes for disposing of the chickens, Rosenberg's sell them either to the Campbell's Soup Company or to Dublin Baby Foods where they will be processed for food.

Throughout the year, a number of chickens turn out to be culls, some never laying an egg, Deanna said.

"The object is they lay eggs when they eat," Deanna said. She explained this year they've had about 88 percent of their chickens laying an egg every day while a very good year would show about 96 percent production.

With this in mind, the chickens are never kept when they are moulting since it would be too expensive. Moulting doesn't usually occur until the chickens are about two years old, anyway.

The 6,800 chickens eat approximately a ton of feed a day, costing $230. Every ten days, the feed truck comes from Barrie with eight or nine tons of food. This food is freshly ground at the mill in Barrie about a day before it is trucked to Rosenberg's, Deanna said.

The chickens eat a ton of food a day

But they never run out of food since the containers hold about ten tons and were completely filled the first time used, always leaving a small residue at the bottom.

With food now costing about $50 a ton more than usual because of the high cost of wheat and corn, Deanna said the egg marketing board system has helped. Through a system of production quotas, the egg marketing board keeps the price of eggs in line with the price of food for the chickens.

Years ago, before the marketing board had implemented its quota system, the price of eggs stayed about the same no matter what price the feed escalated to.

"He (Walter) just about lost his shirt a few times," Deanna said.

She said the board keeps a close eye on the farmers production quotas and can tell if they are only six chickens over their quota. In this case the board would ask that those chickens be disposed of.

Farmers are allowed to have up to 500 chickens

The chickens, in Rosenberg's barn, line the aisles. The new cages, as well as the automatic watering and feeding machines have made taking care of business a little easier. The Rosenbergs now produce over 6,000 eggs a day.

before they must buy a quota which costs approximately $12 a bird. The quotas cannot be bought directly from the egg board but must be purchased from an egg producer directly.

In the past, as quota had to be purchased with the property, but now it can be purchased and moved to any location. This is often practiced when large producers buy a small farmer's quota.

Although Rosenberg's operation would be considered small compared to the bigger operations, it still faces the problems which can plague the big producers as well.

"Our biggest fear is the hydro going out for a prolonged length of time," Deanna said. However, Ontario Hydro has been quite co-operative with the electricity being out for only one hour in the past three years.

Deanna said they might purchase an auxiliary power source such as a generator to use as a back up if the power ever was lost for a long time.

When the hydro is lost, along with the lights shutting off in the barns, the complete ventilating system quits. Also, the automatic feeding and watering machines would not be able to operate.

When the ventilating systems quit, the temperature in the barn would rise about 10 to 15 degrees Fahrenheit every hour. The rise in temperature is deadly for chickens since they do not sweat and need an excess of water. The watering containers in their cages only contain about an ounce of water so the Rosenberg's would never be able to keep up to the chickens' demands.

The barn in which the chickens are kept is remarkably clean, but noisy. Three chickens live in each cage and manage to move quite easily to the food trays and watering container.

The chickens have all had their beaks trimmed, so that they will not attack each other since they have cannibal tendencies, Deanna said.

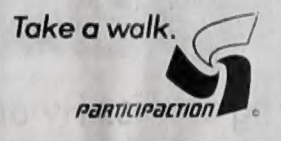

Once outside the barn, the clacking of the chickens cannot be heard, but an awaiting customer reminds Deanna of the business.

"Thursdays are always busy, Fridays are too," she said.

As she sits back down at the kitchen table, facing the barn Deanna points at her sewing machine which is sitting on the floor near a table which also looks out towards the barn.

Deanna seems pleased about the new building near the house which will make it easier for both her and her customers to get their fresh eggs quicker and easier than going all the way to the barn.

Still no matter how automatic the system becomes, every customer will have to pass the huge yellow eye of the chicken at the end of the driveway proclaiming: Rosenberg's Fresh Eggs.

Our prize this week is a bean that measures 12 inches from tip to stem and is not one of those becoming popular jo ba beans, the oil of which is said to grow hair if rubbed on, or a substitute for the oil in the transmission if need be.

It is quite awhile since we first suggested the pasture of goats or sheep on Ontario Hydro power line right-of-ways instead of applying the poisonous herbicide they use now. They should find that what is now loss would become profit very soon. Even beef could range there. An added feature could be the gradual culture of white clover in the empty spaces for bee pasture, for the shepherd or herder's use should they wish to keep bees in their spare time. It is amazing that Ontario has overlooked that triple use of what is often scrub land. Agriculturists seeing the success of this use could then promote it for many of the unemployed. It seems that the bureaucrats are only interested in something immense and spectacular regardless of utility, because after all it is the taxpayers who foot the bill.

We are reminded of a maple leaf, or any green leaf being that we have been reading about lately. These frilly little things are power houses, turnout and storing with the help of the sun, oxygen for our use. Each leaf is made up of cells organized into layers that do that work, utterly capable of forcing water to run up hill (figuratively speaking), and releasing copious amounts of oxygen. Besides that they with their plant breathe as we do, use oxygen and foul the air with carbon dioxide in small amounts, and further these leaves do the sweating or perspiring for the plant.

Herbivorous creatures eat these leaves, their digestive tracts take the abundance of energy out to pass it on as manure, which if spread on the land and plowed under gives us its remaining energy for the benefit of plant life.

Tuesday was bingo as usual with Pat Burk officiating and Greta Kellett helping us. Ray Smith and Allen Macklin took turns calling doing a splendid job. This is one activity here that every one enjoys.

Wednesday morning the ladies, Vivian Bowen, Noreen Stevens, Lucy Woodcock, Hazel Parish, Elizabeth McIntosh and Christina McCrae in the tutelage of Pat Burk, turned out a big batch of oatmeal cookies. The oatmeal cookies we had for supper that night as dessert were a little difficult but adding a little milk made them delicious.

In the afternoon we carpet bowled until dinner. No one has achieved expertise in this game and any time we think we have it, suddenly it becomes all wrong and we must start over.

We awoke in the morning to find the melons which we had covered to have escaped the hard freeze, but as the day wore on we had to admit differently. However we have 15 mature size melons that we are told will ripen in the kitchen.

The Happy Gang are indebted to Western Tire for loaning us a tire pump so we can expand all the balloons for our coming party. That is very much easier than relying on chest contraction, especially so after say the fiftieth balloon. Thanks.

There were two movies Thursday afternoon, 1. East West Island, giving us a chance to see Hong Kong through the eyes of the cinematographer. The people are a kaleidoscope of all races but the Chinese are in the great majority, seemingly happy and very hard working. To them hard work is only a part of life. Such a mixture of races have learned that the best way to thrive is to stick together, and they do. Hong Kong is continually building in an immense spread with ever increasing population. 2. Nara; a stroll through history, a film on Japan and their great industrial expansion. They are incredible people, chiefly through hard work. There is a history of Buddhist faith over many centuries, as their many pagodas will tell. This is one of many films released by the Japan National Tourist Organization.

Hyland Crest seniors have Fun Day

The residents and staff at Hyland Crest Home probably had more fun than anyone else in the county, last Wednesday.

The residents laughed they way through competitions that made up the senior citizen's home Fun Day. The only slightly serious event was the baking competition with the women baking their favourite recipes for the judges.

In this category Marj Kannel took the special award, followed by first place Amelia Good, second place Nin Stutt and third went to Mrs. Hie. The judges weren't the only ones who got to sample the cooking abilities of the women; the residents and staff all enjoyed the baking with their tea at the end of the day.

In the nail driving competition, the man with the most accurate aim was Alf Richardson with Bill Deacon placing second and Harry Robinson in third spot. The women also took their turn at driving the nail, with Viola Deumo ending up in first position; second prize went to Isabella Avery and third prize to Amelia Good.

The fun kept underway with the hog calling contest. Sarah Simmons was the best hog caller with Isabella Avery the second best caller and Alf Richardson placed third.

Viola Deumo was the best shoe kicker with Winnie Johnson the second prize winner and Isabella Avery. The men then tried to out do the women with Bill Deacon placing first, Hugh McEachern second and Alf Richardson, third.

After lunch the moment of the day arrived when it was time to crown Miss Hyland Crest for 1980. The ladies dressed in costumes including gay 90's wear, a mountie uniform and a jolly Robin Hood, all paraded in front of the three-member judging panel made up of the male residents.

Doris Vaughn was named the Queen with her first princess being Evelyn Pember and the second princess was Della Curry.

The men then had their chance to show off their beauty in the leg judging contest. Awards were given for the hairiest, skinniest and shapeliest leg. The judges (female residents) took their job seriously as one judge insisted on feeling all of the men's legs to test for hairiness. In this category Harry Robinson won with Hugh McEachern having the shapeliest legs and Ernest Barry having the skinniest. At the end of the day, the residents gave the staff members a round of applause for the fun-filled day they had organized.

DISTRICT NEWS

Dorset News

by Phyllis Briscoe

"The heart that is soonest awake to the flowers, is always the first to be touched by the thorns."

We would like to welcome a new family to our community. Ken and Ursula Bryant, and daughter Shirley have taken up residence in the Paint Lake area, just off the Paint Lake road on the road to Clear Lake. The Bryants are from Toronto.

There is a Weight Loss club started in the village. It is called Dignity Through Weight Loss and is held in the United Church Sunday school room on Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock. It is under the auspices of Karl Prager and Katherine Hajas of Huntsville, who would like to express their thanks and appreciation to Carol Keown of Ontonogwe who introduced the program and conducted the class for its first session. There is a minimal charge and the class is open for new members so if you are having trouble losing those unwanted pounds either go to the class at the appointed time or call Mr. Prager at 789-7488.

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, September 20, when Andy McEachern and Valerie Poth married in a candle lit service at 8 p.m. in Knox United church, Rev. Stewart officiating. Valerie's attendants were her sister Susan as maid-of-honour, bride's maids Diane Wild and Ruthie McEachern, sister of the groom. The flower girl was Kathy Keown, niece of the groom and the groom's attendants were Boyd Griffin, as best man and ushers Arthur Poth and Dwight Dunlop. The wedding was followed by a reception and dance at the Dorset Community Centre. The couple will reside in Dorset.

A couple from Nanaimo, B.C. who came to attend the wedding are staying for a few weeks visit with the groom's parents, Millie and Murray McEachern. They are Millie's sister Helen and her husband, Charles White, who are enjoying the fall colours and scenery in general.

H.H. Here's a handy laundry tip. Fill a spray bottle almost full of water and add some fabric softener. Spray your ironing board, before ironing clothes to dampen and reduce wrinkles; spray linings of coats, jackets, etc. to get rid of static cling. Its inexpensive and leaves clothes with a nice fragrance.

Intended for last week

"A man who lives only with himself, and for himself, is apt to be corrupted by the company he keeps."

A couple of our recent visitors were a couple of ladies who were born and raised in the village and spent a good part of their earlier years here. Violet Sampson and Margaret Bourdeau of Oshawa were in town to clear out the contents of their parents home (Mr. and Mrs. Alex McKay), which has been sold, another milestone in the changes that seem to go on continually in our village in recent years.

There was a family get together on Saturday, September 13 when the descendants of the late Hiram and Hattie Barry held a reunion in the Dorset Community Centre. Those attending travelled from Toronto, Niagara Falls, Burlington, Hamilton, Scotia, Huntsville and Dwight. There were approximately fifty people present at the function. There was dancing to the music of Jeff Avery and Len Barry played for some square dancing. It was a very festive evening ending with a buffet supper, enjoyed by one and all.

The lake water has finally gotten too chilly to enjoy although I hear some of the youngsters are still braving its icy depths. The ducks also seem not to mind the cooler weather. There has been a flock of a dozen mallards swimming around in the area and seem quite tame. We are hoping that some ambitious hunter doesn't get to them. There has also been a number of gulls scattered around; they look like tiny sail boats as they bob around on the water.

We send best wishes for a speedy recovery to Blanche Clayton who has been confined to her home with illness.

A group of ladies from the Dorset Senior Club attended a meeting last Friday in Haliburton County Home Support Services. This is a group of volunteers who have organized to help senior citizens cope with staying in their own homes, with help when necessary. This includes meals on wheels, wheels to meals, transportation for medical attention and many other services. They haven't been organized for too long, but are to be congratulated on what they have accomplished in a short time. It was a beautiful day for a drive and the leaves are beginning to turn so along with learning much from the meeting it was a very pleasant afternoon.

With lotteries by the dozen these days do you ever wonder who, where and if anyone wins any of those fabulous prizes? They would have to give the names just a man from North Bay, a lady from Toronto, maybe a lady from Dorset? That would be sufficient, but as it is one wonders where all the money goes.

H.H. To help conserve energy why not get double use out of your double boiler. Cook a vegetable in the bottom and at the same time use the top to make cream sauce, heat up vegetables, soup or gravy.

Kinmount Korner

by Millie Moss

Hi everybody. The Hyams; Ken and Joan were at home on Friday with guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Braithwaite of Willowdale and Jack and Lisa Nelson from Don Mills.

Guests at our house this week were Millie and Peter Cruickshanks, Toronto, May and Bill Campbell of Miami, Florida, Clyde Pardy, Cobocok, Bill, Lorrie and Jason Moss, Norland. The Campbell's are visiting Canada for a month or so and enjoying the colours, but as I've told them "they ain't seen nothing yet!"

Bill Moss of Norland spent a day or two in Toronto at a seminar.

Albert Crego is still a patient at Minden Red Cross Hospital this week. Remember the sick folks with a card or call. They'd appreciate it I'm sure.

Lorrie Moss is also quite ill this week and had to be taken to Ross Memorial for treatment. Get well soon, all of you.

Jade Arron Penelope was baptised recently at St. James Anglican Church in Kinmount. Her proud parents are Penny and Leon Hartin while her godparents are Moira Brandon, Arron Perry and John Johnson.

Guests at the home of Joyce, Jack and Ernie Hills, R.R.1, Kinmount, over the week end were Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Penton and sons, Matthew and Lee of St. Catharines.

Here's to you folks who are enjoying the fruits of your labour and garden at this time: Autumn Vegetable Bake: 6 carrots, peeled & sliced, 6 parsnips, peeled & sliced

1 sm. Turnip, diced
1 1/2 cups chicken stock or broth
2 tspn. brown sugar, some butter, salt, pepper and parsley.

Arrange vegetables separately in shallow buttered bake dish, pour stock over and sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter. Cover and bake in 350 oven from 45 to 60 minutes. Season with salt, pepper and parsley. Enjoy - you've earned it.

It was very nice talking to you Mrs. Cook of Irondale. It's thoughtful people like you who make life worthwhile with just a phone call.

Mamie and Bill Campbell, Bill and I spent a few hours in Fenelon Falls on Tuesday.

A very happy birthday is wished to Muriel Nightingale.

Thank you Barb Fountain for being so thoughtful.

Mr. Art Austen is at present travelling to Calgary and Arizona. He is Mrs. Ashbridge's dad, of Crystal Lake. Happy holiday.

Congratulations to the Kinmount Orioles men's baseball team, who won the trophy for the second consecutive year over the Norland team.

We were so sorry to learn of the illness of Phyllis LeCraw and hope she'll improve in the very near future. She and husband Vern, were out west when Phyllis became ill and had to return home.

Happiness is: twin granddaughters, born recently. A pride and joy to grandparents John and Helen Hickey of Galway Road.

It was nice on Wednesday morning to see a couple drive up beside the phone booth in town and industriously begin to clean the booth inside and out. I suppose all the phone booth's must be cleaned, but that was the first time I'd seen it done and it gave me a sense of pride in our area.

The frost that hit us Tuesday night sure played havoc with the gardens. Our flowers, some of them, were looking better than in the summer, but not at the moment. I hate to see them go.

Albert Crego is home now, from the hospital and we hope he'll be much better soon.

Our Lorrie was taken to the hospital again on Thursday early a.m. where it was feared she may have had a heart attack. After tests, it was found these symptoms she was experiencing were also due to this Texas flu strain she's been suffering from for over a week now. Thanks to all the folks who have been kind enough to phone enquiring after her.

Congratulations to Susie (nee England) and Paul on the birth of their 9 lb. plus baby boy at Ross Memorial Hospital on Thursday, September 25.

Visitors at the home of Helen and Alex Graham on Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cove, Jason Moss and myself.

Over one hundred people were in attendance at the first meeting of the season of the Canadian Club at Miss Diana's Restaurant, Lindsay on Thursday, September 25. Senator Hugh McQuarrie proved to be both a humorous and thoughtful speaker. To put it mildly, his topic was a difficult one "Prospects of Peace in the Middle East" but certainly most timely. He spoke of the Middle East being an area rich in history, but situated in an unfortunate position geographically. It is, because of its oil capabilities, important to our future and over the years has produced and contributed learned engineers and men of medicine to name but two professions. The state of Israel was born 30 years ago and for peace, Sen. McQuarrie stated that the Palestine people and leaders of the P.L.O. will have to realize that Israel is here to stay and that they can only recover part of their homeland. Peace is more important to Israel's future than territory and leaders are hoping for peace within ten years. If these countries continue to war as they have in recent times, one would have to wonder how many will still be around to enjoy this peace? The next Canadian Club meeting is on Thursday, October 16 and the speaker will be Phyllis Harrison, a social worker and writer whose topic will be "Home Children Canada's Forgotten Immigrants". If you would wish to attend, kindly contact president Joe Heffer - 454-3955 for further details.

There was another heart breaking fire in our area early Friday morning, September 25 when the township firemen were called to the George Smith home on the west side of Highway 35, just south of Norland. George and his family escaped with only the clothes they were wearing and everything else, except their T.V. was lost when flames engulfed the wooden structure. The firemen fought the fire for three hours, but were unable to save the building. A chimney and pipes on a wood stove were believed to have started the blaze. Everyone is cautioned to use extra care and safety measures when burning wood for heating. Stove pipes and chimneys should be checked frequently, kept free of a creosote build-up and in good working order before lighting a fire. A smoke detector is also recommended by the fire marshal for every home.

It is not the suggested way to spend the first day that you return from your holidays. However, when Phyllis and Vern LeCraw arrived home on September 21 from an enjoyable trip to the west coast, Phyllis was rushed to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay for emergency major surgery. She is feeling better and would, I'm sure appreciate a note or card from you and perhaps a visit later when she is stronger. A speedy recovery is wished to you, Phyllis.

I'm happy to report that Mrs. Hazel Alden is well enough to be out of the hospital and back at her senior citizens apartment in Lindsay. Practical nurse and home maker, Margaret Hanivan will be looking after her for awhile.

Norland Women Institute members would like to thank everyone who attended and contributed to their auction sale on Saturday, September 27. A bake and craft sale is planned for Thanksgiving Saturday, October 11 at 10:30 a.m. in Norland Community Hall and a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Laverne Lywood is recovering well from surgery at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto and his wife, Jeanette expects that he will be allowed to be home later this week. May you soon be feeling well enough to be up and out again, Laverne!

Chatting with Irene

by Irene Moore

When the autumn mists come creeping and the red leaves fall like rain, do not say the trees are weeping. They must die to live again.

Am I glad I mentioned about dwarf Dahlias last week for Saturday morning mine sure looked sick. The frost got them on Friday night so I dug them and now they will await spring again. My Gladioli are also up and drying out I was a little late with some of my plants and now have to baby the delicate ones along. The funny part is that the garden flowers weren't hurt but the house plants were. Oh well if they come they come, and if not I will get new ones next year. I have enough anyway to hold over the winter. I hope you all had better luck than I had.

The birthdays at Hyland Crest home for the month of October are Thomas Harrison, 6th, Ethel MacDonald, 10th; Tryphina Jenkins, 12th; Nilo Mankinen, 19th; Berta Dawson, 22nd; Sarah Simmons, 25th. Don't forget, everyone likes to receive a card.

Mrs. Arnold Coulter came over the other day to show me a pod off her scarlet runner beans and would you believe that when we measured the pod, it was 15" long. Not bad for a bean pod is it?

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Bird of Simcoe visited with the Bill Carrell over the weekend. Brian is Elizabeth Carrell's brother and also a policeman at Simcoe.

The Minden and District Horticultural Society are holding their meeting at the Municipal Building on October 7 at 7:30 p.m. The special speaker will be Mr. R. Gomme who helped the organization so much when it was first organized and I'm sure you will be delighted to hear what he has to say. So come one, come all to this very special meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Robinson had as their guests on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Boyle of Meaford.

We all know who "Billy Graham" is so now I am going to give you one of his favourite Salad recipes.

Grapefruit Salad
Dissolve 1 1/2 envelopes unflavoured gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Heat the juice from 2 cans of grapefruit sections in 1/2 cup water. Add to the gelatin, then add one small can crushed pineapple, 1/4 cup sugar; grapefruit sections, 1/2 cup slivered almonds and juice of 1 lemon. This serves 4-6 people when cooled.

Mrs. Lorne McCallum and Lori, also Miss M. Dawkins all of Lindsay spent the weekend with their aunt Mrs. Ben Harrison.

The devil loves nothing better than the intolerance of reformers.

We are pleased to know that Mary Lou Johnson is home from St. Joseph's Hospital after an operation on her knee. Father Lloyd says she will be on crutches until after the stitches are out.

Minden Figure Skating Club will be holding their registration upstairs at the Municipal Office on October 4, and October 18 from 12 noon until 2 p.m. These dates are both Saturdays and there will be a skate and costume exchange as well as registration. All boys and girls welcome.

It was nice to see the Richard Parisottos of Ajax back in town on the weekend.

Last week's winners at the Mini Card Party were; Cribbage - Ethel Leigh, Diane Stevens, Euchar - Lone hand, Della Griffin; Freda Harrison; Yvonne Beaucage.

Minden U.C.W. will meet in the United Church Hall on Wednesday, October 8, at 7:30 p.m. Mary Johnson of Hall's Lake will speak on Ethiopia and show pictures as well. All interested ladies of the community are invited to come and hear Miss Johnson.

Blessed is he who has learned to admire but not envy, to praise but not flatter, and to lead but not manipulate.

Grant Porter and Irene have just returned from a weeks trip to Brandon, Manitoba. Irene's sister April Danis returned with them and will be living in our village.

At 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, October 4 a puppet show will be held upstairs in the Municipal building. The stories are Peter Rabbit and King Midas. All children, remind your parents of this time of fun.

Rev. and Mrs. Ian Fleming of Oakville spent some time at their cottage last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dawkins held a family gathering at their cottage last Sunday to celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary. All their family were present except for one daughter as she and her husband are stationed at Cold Lake, Alberta. Also present were Gordon's brother Greenville and wife of Toronto and sisters Margery and Dorothy, niece Lori and aunt Mrs. Ben Harrison.

The most difficult arithmetic to master, is the art of counting our blessings. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rivers and sons of Downsview spent the weekend with Mrs. Arnold Coulter.

We are glad to know that Lloyd Brownridge of Scarborough who with his wife spent the weekend at their cottage, is now able to be

Mr. and Mrs. Andy McKenzie spent the weekend at their house in the village.

After all those frosts the leaves should be lovely for those who come on bus tours. It is nice to look out and see all the lovely autumn shades coming into focus.

You know the greatest service we can do to education today is to teach fewer subjects. No one has time to do more than a very few things well before he is 20, and when we force a boy to be a mediocrity in a dozen subjects, we destroy his standards, perhaps his life. This was written by C.S. Lewis, but how true it is. When I went to high school, latin was a subject I had to take for four years, and I fought it every year, for to me it was a dead language and of course after I left school, I never used it. That was a waste, wasn't it? Adios and take care now.

Wilberforce News

by Winnie Schofield

John Powers, who writes about the outdoors for the Toronto Star, recently sang the praises of eight year old Ken Latvanen of Mississauga. Ken was staying with his family in the Saunderson cottages on Lake Wilberforce. His claim to fame is that he caught a good size fish and it turned out to be a four and a half pound, 21 inch bronze back, small mouth bass. The rod used to land this beauty was broken in the process.

Frank and Betty Saunders have lived for years and raised their family on the farm land once owned by Robert Ritchie. Frank and Betty recently celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary by revisiting the scene of their honeymoon at Rochester, New York. Son, Eric accompanied them as a driver and they had a most enjoyable trip travelling through Niagara Falls and coming home via Kingston and the Thousand Islands. Keith and Sylvia Cameron have just returned from a pleasant vacation in which they travelled through the States going as far as California. In the past they have visited many parts of the United States and Canada. They were very impressed with the beauties of California, but confessed that nothing can surpass the scenery of home. Their many friends are happy to welcome them back.

Many thanks to all who contributed garden produce and other items for the harvest service at the Church of St. Margarets. Also to those who helped with the arrangements. Newcomers to assist with this work were Mr. and Mrs. Potts. Leslie Finlay did splendid flower arrangement.

After completing their education our young people are spreading out in all directions. Greg Taylor has started school in Flint, Michigan. His parents, Flo and Fred Taylor drove him down and returned to their home on Sunday. Greg has begun a course in engineering. At the end of December he will return to General Motors in Oshawa for a period of three months which is part of his training schedule.

Heather Barnes is in her second year at Sir Sandford Fleming College in Lindsay. Heather is taking an interesting course in Cartography, which is the art of drawing charts or maps.

Bill, Doug and Robert Tailman are living in Scarborough. Bill is learning the fine art of carpentry or cabinet making. He works with Jeff Born who lived here with his family a short time ago. Doug is working as an apprentice in the tool and die business with the Toronto Plastics Co. Robert is at school studying draughting.

Paul Watson is also preparing to become a draughtsman. He is with the Greer Galloway Associates, consulting engineers, in Peterborough.

Three of our young lads headed West and are working in the Peace River Area. They are Scott Barras, Donald Finnie and Don Thompson. Jim Alden is working for the Wilberforce Veneer Plant and Brenda Casey, who graduated recently from Hamilton High School, is at present in Oshawa where she will soon pick up suitable employment.

Brett Barnes is in his third year of a Geology course at Thunder Bay and his brother Wyatt is at Martin's Mill.

Some people will know Kerry Riley, daughter of Bill and Connie Riley. Kerry is in her fifth year at Guelph University and will soon graduate as a Veterinarian.

That brings you up to date on just some of our bright young people. We can be proud of their efforts.

There have been many favourable comments heard about the supplement included with last week's edition of the Echo. Great articles and excellent photography. Worth keeping for future reference.

sweaters and bedwear being shown by our own local "models" with the clothing being brought in from the Village Shop in Haliburton. Winner of the door prize was Flo Schlosser. There was a combination beauty show put on by Jafra Cosmetics with consultant Cindi Newman following the fashion show. A draw which was held for the models and donated by Jafra was won by Lynn Phillips. There were approximately 50 to 55 ladies present and light lunch followed.

Congratulations Donna Shaw on your $1000 bill win.

On Friday, I heard the geese getting set to start on their long southward journey and from the way it suddenly turned so chilly, I think they're smarter than the rest of us. Give me a call at 488-2399 and in the meantime remember - A man can't change the road he has covered - It's the road up ahead that counts.

Take care and have a nice day.

a pleasant drive to the Dwight area on Tuesday, September 23. It was a bright sunny day and the scenery lovely as we passed the many lakes and trees along highway 35 north. The coloured leaves were few in number and some seem to think that, because of all the moisture this summer, the colour will not be as bright and extensive as some other years. With such high winds and periods of heavy rain today (Friday) many leaves will be blown to the ground. Those in authority have said that the Fall Colour should be at its best. Thanksgiving weekend in this area. However, Mother Nature may yet have her say in this matter.

This week concludes my writing Norland Notebook for Haliburton Echo-Minden Recorder paper. It is four years since I first took pen in hand to write a regular weekly column. I have decided that the time has come for a change both for my readers and myself. I would like to say thank you for the encouraging words expressed from time to time, by those who read Norland Notebook and for your understanding when a mistake was made inadvertently when writing the column. I hope that all will be as co-operative with the next correspondent who, hopefully, will be writing local news shortly. It has been fun and sometimes frustrating, but always interesting.

"When change is successful, we look back and call it growth." God Bless you all.

Guild News

by Carole McLean

The Rail's End Gallery was the site of the annual meeting of the Guild of Fine Arts. On hand for the September 23 meeting were 35 of the total membership of 270. The annual meeting gave us a chance to review the events of each of the groups within the Guild, as well as the activities of the Gallery over the past year. The annual meeting also afforded us the opportunity to express our thanks and appreciation to the outgoing Board of Directors as well as past president Mary Wallace.

It has been a difficult and yet very rewarding year for this dedicated group of men and women. We have seen our Gallery virtually stand on its own, with minimum financial support from the Guild, although they are one and the same. This achievement alone should fill each member with pride as they all have in one way or another contributed to this gigantic achievement.

The incoming Board of Directors for 1980-81, are as follows:

Some are undertaking their directorate for the first time while others have kindly consented to stay on in their previous capacity working diligently for our benefit.

Mary Wallace - as past president; Donna Monk - Incoming president; Jack Denholm - director 1979-80; Marion Langdon - director 1979-80; Ruth Gorrie; Judy Phillips - director 1979-80; Carol Finn - director 1979-80; Leo Dobrzynski - incoming director; Wayne Henderson - incoming director; Linda Brandon - incoming director; Joan Ward - incoming director; Marion Lodenquai - incoming director; Alan Oakley - incoming director; Stephen Phillips - incoming director; Phyllis Bishop - incoming director, in advisory capacity; Barb Bolin - advisory capacity for Sir Sandford Fleming College.

At this time I feel it appropriate to mention that we have lost, to retirement, a very hard working director and that is Lorne Colborne. Lorne has sat on the board for a number of years and his expertise work and dedication to the Guild has been as tireless as any I can mention.

Thank you Lorne you will be greatly missed, but never forgotten.

It is now with some trepidation as well as sadness that we will, come January say goodbye to someone who has given more to the Guild and Gallery in time and energies over the last two years than any one person should be called upon to do.

Carole Finn has been the driving force behind our gallery since its conception and has continued to work tirelessly for the past two years to see it reach its potential.

Although we are reluctant to see her vacate her position as volunteer curator of the Gallery, she has most certainly earned a much needed rest, and we all heartily support her desire to do so.

We thank you Carole and we also extend our thanks to your family for their patience while you worked so diligently for us.

Carole will not be absent entirely however as she has consented to continue to work on our behalf in an equally important position as head of promotion.

Gooderham News

by Mary/Hadley

Two happy occasions took place last week in Gooderham. Fortieth wedding anniversaries were celebrated by two couples who were married on the same day. Etta and Floyd Dovell were honoured with a surprise dinner in their home given by members of their family.

Among the guests were: Carol and Gordon Dawson and family of Peterborough, Fay and Gary Dewey and daughter of North Bay, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Pacey of Harcourt and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Warren of Peterborough, Elda and Jack Hunter were the other couple. They were guests of a family dinner at Graham's Restaurant, Gooderham. Our congratulations go to both couples for many more delightful years of happiness. May the loving memories of days gone by enrich the years that lie ahead.

On Saturday, September 27, Barbara Ann Linton was united in marriage to Keith Hunter, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Hunter at Cardiff United Church with the reception following at Gleggery Inn, Bancroft. We welcome Barbara to our community where, she and Keith will be residing.

On the same day Cathy Hillis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hillis was married to Mr. Kevin Marritt in the Gooderham United Church. A reception was held in the Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre, Wilberforce. One guest travelled all the way from England for the wedding. Since Cathy and her husband will not be living in our community, we shall miss Cathy, but hope to see them often as they return for visits. Congratulations to both the couple. We wish them good luck and happiness in the years that lie ahead. Mr. and Mrs. Albert MacDuff have gone to Lindsay for the winter. We wish them good health and happiness till they return to Gooderham in the spring.

mo came first and Isabella Avery was second after a tie. Amelia Good was in third place. In the men's division Alf Richardson was first, Bill Deacon was second and Harry Robinson was third.

Next on the agenda was the Hog Calling contest. We heard some pretty funny calls, but Sarah Simmons topped them all and ended up in first place. Isabella Avery was second and Alf Richardson placed third. Harry Robinson, Bill Deacon and Doris Vaughan had the difficult task of judging this one.

Next was the Shoe Kicking contest. Vi Deumo and Bill Deacon kicked their shoes the farthest for first place. Winnie Johnson and Hugh McEachern were second, and Isabella Avery and Alf Richardson came in third. After lunch, everyone made their way back to the auditorium for an afternoon of laughs.

The ladies Beauty Contest was first on the list, and much to the surprise of the judges the ladies were dressed in the most intriguing costumes you ever saw. We sure had a lot of fun watching the ladies trying their best to impress the panel of judges. After a difficult decision they made Doris Vaughn, Queen of Highland Crest, Doris was dressed like "Sunbonnet Sue". First princess was Evaline Pemberton. She was a real cute flapper from the 20's. Second princess was Della Curry. She was a very shy lady dressed in clothes from the early 1900's. The judges were Harry Robinson, Alf Richardson and Bill Deacon.

The last event of the day was hilarious. It was the Men's Leg Contest. The men's legs were judged for the hairiest, the skinniest and the most shapely. The panel of judges, namely Irene Burns, Carrie Jones and Viola Deumo had a tough time deciding but finally came up with a decision. Harry Robinson had the hairiest legs. Ernest Barry, had the skinniest and Hugh McEachern had the shapeliest. To end the day, the ladies served their home made goodies and tea. What a feast we all had and what a "fun" day it was. As I said before residents and staff alike had a great time, and I would like to give a special thank you to all the staff and volunteers who helped make it all possible.

The ladies of Kinnmount Horticultural Society served a variety of sandwiches and goodies at the Birthday Tea party on Thursday afternoon. They presented our birthday people with a beautiful decorated cake, and we joined our voices together to sing Happy Birthday to them. Our special guests of honour were Isabella Eastman, Mary Oliver and Frank Billings.

We ended the week Friday on a happy note with Grace Coburn and Lucille Clarke leading us in the Sing Song.

I was sorry to hear that Kay Carr (Mrs. Gordon Carr) is ill in Ross Memorial Hospital. I'm sure Kay would appreciate a card of cheer at this time to help brighten her hospital stay. Theodore Cragg is home after a hospital stay. Keep well, Theodore!

Several from here attended the baby shower for baby Benjamin Hirstwood, baby son of Doug and Janet, held at the home of Bill and Karen Hirstwood on Buller Road, Norland on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brohm and boys of Ottawa were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Faulkner and were some of the many well wishers who attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Ross and Myrtle (nee Brohm).

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Farrow are home after a visit last week with other members of the Farrow clan at New Liskeard.

Bernice and Gord Travis are enjoying a holiday with Barb and Bill Travis and girls at Moosemin, Saskatchewan.

As of today, the 27th we still have no street lights in Somerville side of town. It's two weeks now without lights, despite gentle pleading with township clerk, hydro officials, etc. One of the problems are certain kids with sling shots and a gun. The kids were at the lime kiln just this past week and aren't just kids from this side of town. They are creating havoc with hydro insulators and one wonders why parents allow kids to leave their own property with such toys. Please, if you allow your kids these things, make them use them on your own property! That's only being fair with the rest of us.

We saw the first "Future Survival" at Fenelon - last night and it brings new perspective to Bible study and prophecy being fulfilled.

Mrs. Annie Marles, and I called on the Russell Robinsons at Ingoldby on Thursday evening. I was sorry to know Jessie Rutter is still in Ross Memorial Hospital progressing slowly - Jessie is a West Guilford native and known by many up there. Her maiden name was Sims so you who were her old school friends from Haliburton area, drop Jessie a card of cheer.

Our sympathy to the Geo. Smith family, just north of Cobey who were burned out early Friday morning losing all their belongings.

Harcourt Chapel

We have officially entered the Fall season with the brisk air and colouring of leaves, as a gentle reminder. It is a busy time of year, but a rewarding season as the garden produce and preserves begin to replenish the empty shelves. This past week has been a beneficial and rewarding time for the families that have been able to attend the Family Seminar held at the Chapel week nights.

As of Sunday, September 21 each enjoyed and shared fellowship as Brother Harry Morrison lead the studies. Special music was arranged for some evenings as the Hoover family from L'Amable attended Monday evening. The Hughes Trio on Wednesday and Miss Virginia Rivers Friday. Each ones contribution in song was greatly appreciated. Owing to tive Artists has put together a collection of works, original paintings and woven Indian wall hangings. These are from the "Ojibwe Cultural Foundation Permanent Collection." Also on display and for sale are "Native Arts and Crafts Corporation" works consisting of porcupine quill boxes, mucluks, dolls as well as limited edition prints. This is an excellent show expressing the spiritual relationship and harmony with nature.

Also as part of this extraordinary show there is a library of films on Indian craftspeople being distributed to our school children, as part of native awareness. Also to tie in the show Professor Harvey McCue of Trent University in charge of the department of Native Studies has kindly consented to speak October 3, this Friday evening at 7:30 p.m. Admission will be $2.50 per person and admittance will be restricted to the first 40 in attendance. To make sure you are on hand to hear Professor McCue, call the Gallery at 457-2330 and reserve a seat now.

Professor McCue will talk on Native beliefs, myths and the interrelationship between nature, man and religion.

outside. It is quite mystifying as to where exactly the lightning struck. It shot dirt up the outside wall as high as the roof. It certainly fills us with awe as we experience the forces of nature.

Construction has resumed on Highway 503 to complete its upgrading from Kinnmount to Tory Hill. Completion is set for early fall, 1981. The contract is awarded to Allan G. Cook, Barrie.

Mr. Garnet Hadley, accompanied by his two daughters, Mrs. Edna Morgan and Mrs. Marjorie Hallam, spent some time on Friday at his home in Gooderham. The ladies had a short time to say "hello" to some old friends.

Mr. and Mr. Robert Madill and son Paul of Clinton attended the Marrett-Hillis wedding. Ruth's mother, Mrs. Violet Billings, returned with them for a short visit.

Mrs. Claribel Sheehan and

Mrs. Mary Hadley spent the weekend in Barrie at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hadley. While there they all attended the Hadley Reunion in Barrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Hunter spent last week at the home of their daughter and son-in-law near Edmonton, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Edwards spent Sunday with Barbara's mother, Mrs. Audrey Prentice. With them was their new daughter, who was making her first visit to her grandmother.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Alsop included their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hunter, two granddaughters, Linda and Marlene with Linda's husband, Ron and their family, Trevor, Tracey and Tara. The special occasion was the celebration of Mrs. Evelyn Alsop's birthday.

family commitments, Mr. Morrison was unable to remain for Sunday evening, so Brother Don Waterhouse concluded the series with the topic on Reality in Relationship. These series were recorded and are being made available.

This week is back to a normal routine with Prayer and Bible study Wednesday evening, Young People's Friday evening and a Three service Sunday with Communion at 10 a.m. Sunday School at 2:30 and of special interest the first of a two part film Sunday evening at 7:30 on How the Bible Came to Be. This Sunday's film will bring a carefully documented presentation of the Old Testament showing the origin beautifully photographed in the Holy Lands. The film on Sunday, October 12 will be Part 2, on the New Testament. You are invited to attend and benefit from these films.

in turn refers business to their establishments. Many also hope to be provided with advice and constructive suggestions in regard to their operations. The Chamber in fulfilling this role is in the midst of putting together the biggest promotional campaign we have ever attempted, which involves 25,000 directories, 15,000 accommodation guides, and 50,000 "Lure" brochures. Last year the Chamber was asked to take on the administrative responsibilities of the Haliburton County Economic Development Commission and it has done so willingly. It would appear that this is logical since so many of the areas of concern of the Chamber and the Commission overlap to the point that it would be simply duplication to do otherwise. Nonetheless, this has tended to increase the work load and broaden the scope of the Chamber's involvement.

The constitution of the Chamber states that the object "shall be to promote and improve trade and commerce, and the economic, civic, and social welfare of the Provisional County of Haliburton." That is a far reaching mandate and the Chamber has, we feel been doing it's best to fulfill what has been asked of it, in spite of the constraint of limited staff and budget. If the thinking that we "should go back to promoting Tourism" goes beyond one newspaper and a few county councillors, it may be time to sit down and re-draft the constitution and in turn walk away from some of the things we are presently doing. We would certainly make our job a lot easier -- although possible less effective.

The annual meeting is next week - October 8th. Make sure you're there - maybe we'll get a chance to talk about it.
